Connally Predicts Acheson O. K.

Further Changes Hinted

Republicans Cool Towards Choice

(Compiled From Wire Services)

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senate approval of Dean C. Acheson as secretary of state was forecast today by Senator Connally (D-Tex) despite a marked Republican coolness.

Connally told reporters the Senate Foreign Relations committee—organizing Tuesday under his chairmanship—will set a date for Acheson and James E. Webb to appear personally.

Catching Capitol Hill largely by surprise, President Truman yesterday named Acheson as secretary and moved Webb from his post as budget director to that of undersecretary of state, after reluctantly accepting the resignations of Secretary of State Marshall and his chief aide, Robert M. Lovett.

Western European diplomats and newspapers hailed the appointment while expressing disapointment over Marshall's resignation.

The move was regarded in Congress as possibly only the first of several changes in top personnel. Speculation involved the posts of Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Secretary of Interior Krug and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

Acheson's confirmation was forecast on the basis of his personal acquaintance with many senators and the unwritten rule that a president can name almost anybody he chooses to his cabinet.

But there was evidence that some influential Republicans—and a few Democrats—were disappointed at the choice.

DECLINE COMMENT

Significantly, perhaps, Senators Smith of New Jersey, Hickenlooper of Iowa and Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican members of the foreign relations group, declined to comment publicly on the change. So did Senator George of Georgia, a Democratic member.

The reaction in Congress was considered important not only because it may effect Acheson's confirmation chances, but also because one of his big jobs will be to determine how closely to work with both Republican and Democratic leaders in developing new foreign policy measures.

Meanwhile a group of Republicans urged that the Senate quiz Dean Acheson on his law firm's dealings with the communist Polish government before confirming him as secretary of state.

The GOP senators also indicated they will look into Acheson's association with Alger Hiss, his onetime state department aide who now is under indictment for perjury in connection with the communist spy case. Sen. Alexander Wiley, R, Wis., a member of the Foreign Relations committee, said the Senate should determine whether President Truman's new choice for the top state department post is "soft" on communism.

Rankin Ouster Seen Looming

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Democratic members of the House ways and Means committee have voted, in effect, to oust Rep. John E. Rankin, D, Miss., from the House un-American Activities committee, it was learned today.

The vote was taken on a motion to bar chairmen of major committees from other committee assignments. Rankin is slated to head the House Veterans Affairs committee—a post he says he will not give up.

The motion was passed by what was described as a "substantial majority." It is still subject to approval by the Democratic caucus, and could be reconsidered by the ways and means Democrats who assign party members to the various house committees.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Dr. Clyde Fisher, 70, explorer, botanist and zoologist, and a native of Sidney, Ohio, died yesterday. He was the newly elected president of the Explorers club and a former officer of the American Museum of Natural History.

Beeghly, president of the Standard Slag company and the Cold Metal Process company, was accused of passing a truck and forcing a police car off a highway.

Way Opened For Parole Of Slayer

Herbert Commutes Gray's Sentence

The first-degree murder sentence of Arthur Gray, of Mansfield, was commuted to second degree today by Gov. Thomas J. Herbert. The commutation makes Gray eligible for consideration by the state parole board.

Gray has served more than 21 years of a life sentence for first-degree murder. On Sept. 24, 1927 he stabbed George Williams to death during an argument over 50 cents won in a dice game. The killing occurred at East Sixth street and Franklin avenue.

He was convicted Nov 16, 1927 by a jury of six men and six women. The jury recommended mercy and Gray was sentenced to a life term in the penitentiary. George H. Blecker was county prosecutor at the time of the conviction.

OTHERS WIN CHANCE

Other Ohio prisoners whose sentences were commuted to second-degree murder by the retiring governor were:

Ferdinant Michitich, of Cuyahoga county, who was convicted, with two companions, of killing a bakery truck driver in Cleveland, Dec. 24, 1923. One of the trio, the triggerman, was electrocuted.

Thomas Zingale, Summit county, convicted of implication in the murder of a waiter in an inn near Akron in 1930. He and three others were robbing the place when one of the trio shot the employe.

William Mahoney, Lucas county, who has been editor of the London Prison Farmer, penitentiary paper, and has authored numerous stories. Mahoney and James Southard, who is also being made eligible, were convicted of the December, 1925 murder of a restaurant patron during a holdup.

Solly Hart, of Mahoning county who was convicted of being involved in a conspiracy to kidnap and kill which resulted in the death of one Roy "Happy" Marino in 1938.

Another prisoner recommended for commutation is Arthur Peebles, of Wood county, who was sentenced for killing a tenant farmer on March 10, 1946.

Four Perish In Volcano

Fear Plane Fell In Molten Lava

HILO, HAWAII, — (AP) — Frightened villagers in the path of Mauna Loa's lava flow left their homes today despite assurances they were in no immediate danger of being engulfed.

The seacoast villages of Honaunau and Keokea were virtually abandoned, although Police Lieut. Anthony Cambra of the Kona sector insisted the lava would not endanger them.

Four persons may have died as an indirect result of the eruption, first since 1942. A red Stinson plane, one of many flying around the spectacular outburst, was seen heading into a cloud about three quarters of the way up the mountain at 8:30 a.m. yesterday. There was no trace of it after that.

The private plane was piloted by Frank Lee of Honolulu, and had James Redmon, Honolulu, and possibly two other passengers aboard, said Bill Holloway, Hawaii Aeronautics commission safety director.

Plane Crash Fatal to 6

BURTON AIRBASE, ENGLAND — (UP) — Three American fliers and three passengers on a giant C-54 Berlin airlift transport plane were killed last night when the ship crashed into a 1,500-foot hill at Stakehouse, 50 miles from here.

Salvage crews reaching the area reported that two bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage and four others could be seen in the cabin.

The plane was enroute from Rhine main airport at Frankfurt to Burtonwood airbase, where Berlin airlift planes are checked and serviced after every 200 hours in the air.

Marshall Halted Plan

Dem Leaders Blamed In 'Moscow Mission'

By R. H. SHACKFORD

LONDON—(UP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall blamed Democratic party campaign leaders, rather than President Truman, for the ill-fated attempt to send a special mission to Premier Josef Stalin last fall.

It can be disclosed today that Marshall stopped the proposed trip of Chief Justice Fred M. Vinson to Moscow at the last minute.

Vinson was virtually ready to leave Washington and was to halt en route in Paris, where Marshall was attending the United Nations General assembly.

Marshall was annoyed at the proposal because it worried western European countries that the United States, while prosecuting the cold war, was going behind their backs to make a deal with the Russians.

But Marshall was more indignant at the publicity the affair was given. He was indignant to learn that the "Vinson mission" had leaked.

Marshall's version of the incident goes something like this:

On Oct. 5 Marshall received in Paris from Washington, word that the president wanted to talk to him on the American empassy tele-printer.

Marshall and his chief assistant, Marshal Carter, went to the embassy code room in Paris for the "conversation."

Meanwhile in Washington Under-Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett, who has now resigned with Marshall, was asked to go to the White House to take part with the President in the exchange.

He called the President directly to ask what documents, if any, he should bring. The President told him he did not need any because it was only about a message to Stalin. Lovett flashed that word to Marshall immediately.

While still waiting for the President, Marshall drafted in pencil about 300 words stating why no kind of message should be sent to Stalin at that time. The Security council was in the midst of a debate on Berlin and the west had vowed it never would leave Berlin voluntarily.

When the President came on the teletype he sent a 400 word message to Marshall proposing to send Vinson to see Stalin.

Mr. Truman proposed that Vinson would attempt to convince Stalin that the United States wanted only peace and also to convince him of the awful consequences for the world if war started in this atomic age.

Marshall answered Mr. Truman with his pencilled draft statement that he had written in advance. He made only one change. Where he had objected to the dispatch of any message to Stalin he scribbled instead "or envoy."

The President answered immediately by agreeing with Marshall's arguments against the project.

Marshall believed the President's political advisers in the midst of the campaign "sold" the President the idea of the mission to Moscow as good politics.

Seek Clues In Brutal Killing

ATHENS — (UP) — Sheriff George Bateman of Athens county today awaited results of fingerprint tests in an effort to identify the brutal slayer of Miss Eleanor E. Gifford, 52, Episcopal church field worker.

Miss Gifford's body was found Thursday in her home near here. She had been beaten on the head with a heavy instrument, possibly a tire tool.

"The murder was the work of a fiend," Sheriff Bateman said. "He had to be—the unusual brutality shows that." Coroner John H. Elias, who ruled the death a homicide, said "the slayer must have been a maniac."

Chiang Goes On Vacation

NANKING — (UP) — A highly-placed source said today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was scheduled to leave Nanking shortly to take an "indefinite vacation" in Formosa.

Chiang probably will leave within the next three days, this source said. It was not known whether the generalissimo would announce his resignation before his departure, the source said.

During his "vacation" Chiang will cease his active direction of national affairs and hand over the reins of government to Vice-President Li Tsung-Jen, the report said.

Vice-President Li is known as one of the leaders of the government move to seek peace with the communists which Chiang enunciated in his New Year's speech. In that speech Chiang indicated he was prepared to step down to help the cause of peace.

Those arrested include Mrs. Eugenia Mouzinidis, wife of one of four men charged with Polk's slaying, and her brother.

PEDESTRIAN KILLED

COLUMBUS, — (INS) — Miss Della Mullin, 55, was killed today when struck by a car driven by Frank Hammond, of Worthington.

Blizzard Moving Eastward

(By United Press)

The weather bureau warned today that a blizzard would strike this afternoon over the same western plains states where the worst storm in the history of the West left 22 dead and almost a hundred missing earlier this week.

Forecasters could not say whether the new blow would be as bad as the one that hit Sunday and raged for three days. But they warned ranchers that storm-weakened livestock should be protected.

The new blizzard came out of Canada late yesterday as a "moderately-strong" disturbance and began developing its full strength this morning.

It was accompanied by a severe cold wave, high winds, and moderate to heavy snow. Weather experts said it probably would affect a wide portion of the country since it was moving south and east rapidly.

Early today, the storm spread over most of North Dakota and all of Montana east of the Continental Divide. It was just beginning to push into Wyoming. Forecasters said it would arrive over Chicago in the form of rain changing to snow by Sunday evening.

Residents of Nebraska, Colorado, Utah, Kansas, and the Dakotas were warned to brace for the blow. Those states had just reopened highways and railroads clogged by the earlier storm.

Snowplows were still seeking the missing. The latest victim found was Harmon Hollemon, 44, a Gordon, Neb., truck driver who froze to death near his truck on a highway 12 miles west of Harrison, Neb.

The toll of dead stood at seven in Colorado, nine in Wyoming, four in Nebraska and one each in South and North Dakota.

About 70 persons were still listed as missing in Nebraska. Sixteen were missing in South Dakota. Government experts said about 110,000 sheep were threatened with starvation in Utah as the new disturbance struck. Winter ranges already were covered with deep snow.

Mercury Drop Due

Balmy Weather To End Sunday

The June in January weather is going to end tomorrow.

For the past two days, the calendar said it was winter, but the mercury said it was spring.

The mercury hit an unseasonable high of 48 degrees at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, and was back to that mark at noon today. It got no lower than 39 degrees at 8:30 a. m. today.

The weatherman said today, however, that Sunday would be cloudy and windy with rain changing to snow flurries. It will turn considerably colder, the forecast said.

In Cleveland the butterfly thought: "It might as well be spring."

So he climbed out of his cocoon and sleepily explored the kitchen floor of Mrs. Alex Baum. After all, it was 51—the second time this week the mercury has climbed into the 50's.

"The unseasonable weather fooled him, that's all," commented Curator Arthur B. Williams of the Museum of Natural History. "This weather would fool anybody. A week of it and the pear trees will be in bloom."

Akron Suspect Held In West

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — A persistent electrician was held for Akron Ohio police today, accused of using a rival suitor twice for a target.

Police picked up James Boyd Guy, 27, yesterday and held him on a fugitive warrant for Akron authorities.

The suspect, said police, first shot James W. Algea, in 1947, fled to California, and then made a return trip eastward to shoot the victim again when he married the girl.

Police charge, he shot Algea six times. Algea, though still in a hospital, will recover.

Cites Appointment

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Governor-elect Frank J. Lausche had announced today the appointment of John W. Peck, Cincinnati attorney, as executive secretary, effective Monday.

English Air Force Alerted

Troops Sent to Trans-Jordan

(By Associated Press)

Britain accused Israel today of shooting down five RAF planes in "unprovoked attacks" by Jewish fliers yesterday over Egyptian soil near the Palestine border.

The Jews said they shot down five planes around Rafa and that four appeared to be British and the fifth Egyptian. An Israeli military spokesman asserted the planes were on armed reconnaissance and that some in fact carried wing bombs.

Britain is allied to Egypt and Trans-Jordan in mutual assistance pacts. She announced the dispatch of British troops of Aqaba, the Trans-Jordan Red Sea port close to the scene of recent Palestine fighting.

Britain alerted her airforce to "regard as hostile any Jewish aircraft" discovered in the futue over Egypt. Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin stuck close to his desk, underscoring the gravity with which Britain regarded the growing tension with the pint-size state.

All Palestine fronts appeared quiet under a new U.N. cease fire, Rahman Abdel Azazm Pasha, secretary general of the Arab League of Egypt, Trans-Jordan and five other Arab states, declared fighting would be renewed in Palestine.

The British said four Spitfires and a Tempest were shot down on the Egyptian side of the border. An Israeli spokesman said the planes were downed just inside Palestine.

ONE PILOT CAPTURED

One of the British pilots was captured, the body of another was found burned and the other two were believed killed, an official spokesman said. The Jews blamed the Egyptians for a flurry of shooting in the Rafa area after yesterday's cease fire order was to become effective. The land fronts appeared quiet today.

The British foreign office said it had sent British troops at the request of Trans-Jordan to guard the Red sea port of Aqaba, the only coastal outlet Trans-Jordan has.

The British have reported Jewish incursions into Trans-Jordan and Egypt and the Jews have vouched for their own drive into Egypt, as far as El Arish, 30 miles across the border.

Jewish sources claimed Rafa was not Egyptian, as the National Geographic society lists it, but a Palestinian town which the British placed on the Egyptian side of the border before ending her League of Nations last May.

The air fighting above Rafa was sure to have serious reverberations, if only to increase British hostility to the Jewish state. The British embassy at Cairo is investigating.

The British were reported already flying reconnaissance patrols over Trans-Jordan within view of the Negev battle area and building its gasoline and other supplies in the country.

Succumbs To Tetanus

Homer W. Miller, 62, of Mansfield, R D. 4, died at Madison hospital today after an illness of a few days. Mr Miller's death was caused by tetanus, or lock jaw, which developed after he stepped on a nail at his home Dec. 31.

He was born at Bellville Oct. 13, 1886 and had spent his entire life in this vicinity, where he was a farmer.

Mr Miller was a member of St. Michael Lutheran church at Mifflin.

He is survived by his wife, Ililda Koogle Miller, a foster daughter, Mrs. Mary Jackson of Tampa, Fla.; a brother, Hershel Miller of Michigan, a sister, Mrs. Gay Gregg of Mansfield; and a number of nieces and nephews.

Rev. Carveth P Mitchell, pastor of the First Lutheran church, will conduct funeral services at the Wappner funeral home at 1:30 p. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mt. Zion cemetery.

Young Bank Robber Enters Guilty Plea

TOLEDO, — (INS) — One of three alleged Dunkirk, O., bank robbers awaited sentencing today while the two others awaited trial.

Lucio H. Valdez, 17, of Laredo, Tex., pleaded guilty yesterday in Toledo federal court to charges of violating the National Securities act. Judge Frank J. Kloeb deferred sentence pending a probation officer's report.

Leaking Fuel Line Solves 'Mystery'

Sewer Oil Troubles Go Up In Smoke

Mansfield's troubles with mystery oil in the sewer lines went up in smoke last night.

A pool of oil was found on a property at 549 Cook road, apparently from a leaking crude oil pipeline. The oil had been spilling into sewers, creating a fire threat.

Fire Chief L. J. Steele decided the best way to eliminate the hazard was to burn the oil, so firemen stood by as flames licked up the fuel in a blaze that attracted scores of spectators.

The Standard Oil company said a leak in the oil pipeline had been repaired earlier in the day.

The "mystery" oil had been hindering operations at the city sewage treatment plant, according to a statement by Service-Safety Director Earl T. Garrison yesterday.

Garrison said the oil was first detected Wednesday night at the plant and city officials were concerned about the detrimental effect the substance might have on the plant's operation.

Garrison said the oil discolored equipment at the sewage plant and made it difficult to determine the bacteria content of treated sewage.

Germans Care Little For Present Policy

There is now available the material for a preliminary estimate of the progress and the prospects of the policy which proposes to set up a German government west of the Elbe, and to make western Germany a visible economy within the European Recovery Program. Just when this policy was decided upon may not be known until the records and the memoirs of this period are published. But shortly after the break up of the Council of Foreign Ministers held in London last autumn, the United States and Great Britain took the initiative, with France consenting reluctantly, in formulating the policy. Two conferences which were held in London during the winter and spring ended with the signing of the London agreements early in June.

These agreements, both those which were published and those which have not yet been published, were a body of general principles to be followed by the governments, and of instructions to Generals Clay, Robertson, and Koenig, designed to set up a regime for the Ruhr, and to create a German federal republic in western Germany; an occupation statute which would fix the legal relationship of this republic to the Western powers; and a plan by which western Germany was to become, with the help of Marshall aid, a productive and self-sufficient partner in the reconstruction of Western Europe.

During the last six months much work has been done to put into practice the policy formulated by the London agreements. The Germans have been meeting in a constitutional convention, which they prefer to call the Parliamentary council, and their deliberations are interesting and significant. The military governors have been negotiating the text of the occupation statute which will in fact be the supreme law of Western Germany, and their disagreements are now for Washington, London, and Paris to resolve.

Finally, we know the results of the currency reform, and there exists a plan, now in the hands of the Marshall aid countries, which is supposed to show how the economy of Western Germany is to become prosperous and solvent.

These three parallel developments need to be studied together. When they are, not only those who have had great hopes but also those who had great fears of the policy of the London agreements, will find themselves asking not what will happen if the policy succeeds but what will happen, as seems so highly probable, if the policy works very badly indeed.

The Parliamentary council at Bonn was opened last September with a speech by Professor Carlo Schmid, the leader of the Socialists in the constitutional convention. Professor Schmid is the most influential member of the committee which drafted the so-called Chiemsee report, the preliminary working paper of the convention.

Professor Schmid told the council that the document they were going to prepare could not be a consitution: "The German people, being under an alien occupation, are not free to form such a constitution; on the contrary what they are going to do is imposed on them by external compulsion. Such imposed documents may be technically good but they are not, democratically speaking, consitutions."

CITES 'COMPULSION'

Professor Schmid went on to tell the constitutional convention that since they were acting under "external compulsion" the government they would create could be only "the apparatus of domination." When a people, he said, "has to organize under alien rule and subject to its approval, it does not consitute itself unless it does so against the alien rule itself."

There we have, quite candidly set forth, what the Germans, our strongly anti-communist Germans in the western zones, think of this western German state we have invited, indeed pushed them to form.

When Professor Schmid spoke in September, he had not seen the text of the occupation statute under which the government, in which his Socialist part will be much the strongest element, is to live.

When the western Germans see that statute, they will find set down in black and white the bald and inescapable fact that it is impossible to have democratic self-government under military occupation. It will demonstrate to the Germans that all power is reserved to their conquerors, and that they have no real power themselves.

This is only a straw in the wind. But I venture to say that by creating prematurely, and under humiliating conditions, a democratic German government to deal with impossibly difficult problems, we shall bring about two unhappy results.

We shall have made it almost inevitable that the ideas of democracy will be discredited once more among the rising generation of Germans.

And, as this misconceived experiment proceeds, we shall find that our relations with Germany become more and more an entanglement—though on a vaster scale and with more malignant consequences—like our entanglement in Greece.

4 Men Enlist

Reports On Madison

(By ANN DIDICHER)

It was with mingled gladness and regret that we returned to school after a long vacation. Parties, skating, shows, and sleeping were high on the list of activities. But eagerness to share and compare vacation notes made us happy to settle down to work.

Our first basketball game of the new year was against Willard. Unfortunately they held the long end of the 44-41 score when the game was over. Next week the boys are scheduled to play two games. The game Tuesday night will be at New London and the Friday night game will bring Loudonville here.

Ann Didicher had a caroling party a few days before Christmas. Those attending were Russell "Elmer" Glenn, Joe Distel Jim Brightbill, Lydia Gross, Gene Aungst, Joyce Elliott, Ann Dyson, Eugene Riblet, Don Morris, Reba Stoffer, and Mary Jo Hunter.

On Jan. 2, Joyce Elliott's home was the setting for a party to start the new year. Those present were Jim Brightbill, Larry Secrist, Mike Lilli, Alex Bosko, Ann Dyson, Bob Wilson, Ed Thomas, Bob Wendland, Benny Kaylor, Kenny Woerth, Paul Cashell, Connie Gregorio, Virginia Schieber, Marily Swisher, Dorothy Sabo, and Tiny Sauder.

Mifflin seems to be the popular ice skating spot for the kids from Ram Hill this year. Among the bruised and battered skaters we find Jo Ciraulo, "Dutchie" Bader, Ann Dyson, Dorothy Sabo, Eugene Riblet, Jack Bosh, Marilyn Swisher, Tommy Ciraulo, Jim Brightbill, Mike Lalli, Larry Secrist, Clara Dill, Shirley Bell, and Shirley Frisch.

The Juniors are proudly displaying their class rings which arrived the day before Christmas.

Latin club initiation this year was quite interesting. The "activities"were varied, to say the least. Shirley Beer, Janice McMullen, Romona Banks, Frances Smith and Carolyn Teeters ate chocolate pie without benefit of hands! Dean Stoffer and David Tucker wore orange hula skirts while they did a dance accompanied by Loretta Herf at the drums. Sara Shellhaas and Carol Motter won the penny pushing contest, but Alma Booze and Pat Pence were close behind. Of course they pushed the penny with their noses. A ring was passed from Kay Jesson to Doradeanne Carver, to Bobby Underwood on tooth picks which were held in their mouths. Marilyn Brumenshenkel, Maureen O'Hara, Dorothy Barth, and Evelyn Boggs were fed spaghetti, while they were blindfolded.

Teachers End Their Travels

By JANET NEAL and JANISE SMITH

A number of students and teachers at Appleseed spent the Christmas vacation traveling to various places of interest.

Among those visiting away were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Thoms who went to New York City; Miss Marianna Russell, who visited in Cincinnati; Miss Ellena Percy who spent the two weeks in Florida and Mrs. Nellie Dent, who visited in Columbus.

Miss Gay Rosenberg spent the time in Canada while Bud Montgomery was in Pennsylvania. Jean Craft also visited in Columbus, while Miss Sally Ritzenthaler was in New York City. Joanne Nichols was in Chicago and Marianne Mosberg was in Cleveland.

NEW STUDENTS ENROLL

New students being welcomed into our midst are Carol Cook, from Quebec, Canada; Peter McLaughlin from Mifflin; Patty Paul from Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Wilma Glover from Fairmont, West Va., Wanda Wolford from Bucyrus, and Charles Anderson from Simpson.

Students in Miss Edna Tucker's home economics classes have been enjoying a new radio which was purchased with the proceeds of a bake sale, held before Christmas.

An intramural basketball tournament has been started between the boys of the various home rooms. The girls have started playing basketball in gym classes and an all-star team will be chosen soon.

Guest Speaker

PERRYSVILLE—Rev. Clayton Pepper, director of town and country work of the northern Baptist convention, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the Vermillion and Perrysville churches. He will instruct and advise on the evangelistic program both churches will enter into this year.

CRIME COSTS MONEY

MT. CARMEL, Ill.—(AP)—A burglar took everything he could find in a bowling alley's cash register—35 cents. But while he was making his way out of the place he lost $1 in his own money. He learned that crime doesn't pay—and, in this case, cost him 65 cents.

Five men have enlisted in the regular Army and one man in the volunteer Marine reserve, Mansfield Army and Marine recruiting center announced yesterday.

Included in the five Army enlistments were Stanley W. Payne and Raymond S. Payne, cousins, both of Marion, enlisting together for three years each. Also enlisting were Warren J. Smith, Galion, for three years; Earl E. Burton, Harpster, R. D. 1, for one year, and James F. Houser, Upper Sandusky, for 21 months.

Anthony R. Buzenski, 274 West Sixth street, Mansfield, was sworn into the volunteer Marine reserve as a corporal for four years, by Capt. Robert E. Dobson, volunteer Marine recruiting officer.

Buzenski will retain his civilian status, but in the case of a National emergency, he will be called to immediate active duty with the regular Marines.

Buzenski served three years in World War II with the Fourth Marine Division on Saipan and the Marine Division on Okinawa.

Wife-Slayer Succumbs

LORAIN — (AP) — A warrant charging Sam Cimesa, 51, with the fatal shooting of his wife, Kattie, 44, in their home last Wednesday never will be served. Crimesa died last night.

He died shortly before midnight in St. Joseph's hospital of bullet wounds in his chest. Police said they would list his death as a suicide.

Until he lapsed into a coma Thursday afternoon, Cimesa stuck to his melodramatic story that two masked robbers entered his house Wednesday morning and fired the fatal bullets. Two daughters found them in the living room of their home Wednesday afternoon.

Detective Lieutenant Vernon Smith said police records would list Cimesa as the slayer of his wife, but that investigation would continue in an attempt to find a motive for the shooting.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SUNDAY'S horoscope accents the prosperous and happy culmination of all relating to church, clerical, philanthropic and social activities, with all rising to brilliant heights of satisfaction, progress and rich fulfillments of cherished hopes and wishes. Serious efforts, sound principles and high aspirations find their ample rewards in all desired objectives.

For the Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are encouraged to consolidate all their faculties, energies and ambitions on high levels of achievement, attainment and aspirations, when such are in the line of work, business, financial position or personal aspirations or ideals. All are under excellent auspices for recognition, reward, preferment and possible renown for labors well performed, principle and integrity sustained, and advanced aspirations due for expansion, rich fruition and inner gratifications.

A child born on this day is well endowed with character, qualities, talents and ambitions for a useful, honored and gracious way of life, with personal pleasure and cultural prestige.

A true and interesting fact is that unless it had proven value and merit, no amount of advertising could possibly have built up the reputation that FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE has earned and maintained since 1855 for the relief of coughs due to colds by its soothing effect on the throat.

Farm Visit Subject of New Novel

City Library Gets 'Home Place'

"Home Place," by Wright Morris, is one of 18 new books which will be available at the Mansfield Public library Monday.

This fiction selection is the story, told in photographs and text, of a New York family's visit to a Nebraska farm. The pictures illustrating the story are photographs taken by the author. The unusual combination of pictures and narrative comes near to creating a new fiction form. The book makes the impression of a documentary film in book form.

FIRE IN THE MORNING, by Elizabeth Spencer, is a first novel describing the antagonism between two Mississippi families. The action begins in the late 1800's and follows a chain of hate that eventually unlooses the past and leads to tragic developments. The predatory Gerrards founded a family on fraud; the Armstrongs were forced to submit to save the reputation a woman.

FIRE IN THE HEART, by Henrietta Henkle, is a novel based on the life of Fanny Kemble, the celebrated English actress. Opening with Fanny's debut as Juliet in Covent Garden when she was eighteen, it covers the years of her marriage with Pierce Butler, the American. The book adhers closely to facts but is imaginative in detail and evokes the revolutionary spirit abroad at the time both in England and America.

Other fiction: . . . . . .

RANGE DRIFTER, by Thompson; SAINT ERRANT, by Charteris; BIG FREEZE, by Partridge.

Non-Fiction: . . . . . .

SAL BLOOM'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY is the life story of the New York congressman who began his career more than 70 years ago in San Francisco. This is an ingratiating account of how the son of a Polish immigrant made good in America. His formal schooling was slight, but he was earning $25,000 a year by the time he was 18. His first success was in the entertainment world and as a music publisher. In 1922 he went to Congress where he has served with distinction.

PONY WAGON TOWN, by Ben Riker, is of special interest to Ohioans because it is the reminiscenses of the author's boyhood in an Ohio town 60 years ago. The story centers in the carriage-building shop run by his father. The shop specialized in the construction of small vehicles for Shetland ponies. It is a glowing record of a pleasant way of life.

BEING AN AMERICAN, is a collection of speeches by William O. Douglas, Supreme court justice. Douglas is devoted to Civil Rights and the well-being of the common man. Also included are tributes to Norris, Brandeis, and Franklin Roosevelt.

MYSELF WHEN YOUNG, is an autobiographical sketch of Henry Handel Richardson, the Australian woman writer, who was in reality Mrs. John G. Robertson. It covers only her childhood in Australia and her student days in Germany up to the year of her marriage in 1895. She died before it was finished and the rest of her life is sketched in by a friend, and the book includes an appreciation criticism of her work by her husband.

Other non-fiction includes: MODERN PAINTERS, by Venturi; STORY OF ARCHITECTURE IN MEXICO, by Sanford; FRANCE by Murray; POETRY OF THE NEGRO, by Hughes; SHOPS AND STARS, by Ketchum; BIG DIVIDE, by Lavender; AMERICANS FROM HUNGARY, by Lengyel; CITY MAKERS, by Nadeau.

Claims Biffle Will Hold to Party Line

A weekly news magazine calls him the "97th Senator" who, as chief of staff to Vice-President Alben Barkley and secretary of the Senate "will have more influence on Senate action . . . than any elected member of the upper branch." What manner of man is Leslie Biffle, soft-spoken native of Arkansas who has been catapulted by the Truman-Barkley election upset into a place of such power? In what manner will he exercise the vast though little publicized influence on legislation which the secretary of the Senate wields.

With how much of Truman's labor, housing, federal aid to education and health, foreign policy and, being a southerner, the president's civil rights program does Mr. Biffle agree?

Upon the answers to these questions depend to a greater degree than most Americans realize the course of American and world history during the next four years. And the answers may be found in Mr. Biffle's most outstanding characteristic—loyalty. Whatever his personal views may be, the promises of his party's platform and those of Truman and Barkley during the campaign are as immutable to Leslie Biffle as the rising and setting of the sun.

The party's word to do specific things is, in his books, equivalent to performance to the letter as far as the vagaries of politics permit. "We pledged to do certain things," he told me just before Christmas. "If we fail to deliver, the voters ought to repudiate the Democrat's or any other party which goes back on its pledges."

"Suppose the Southerners filibuster?" I asked him.

"We've talked with some of them," he answered in a tone which boded no hope for ex-Dixiecrats, hungry for patronage, committee assignments and forgiveness for their ill-starred bolt, "and some of them are ready to listen to reason."

"Do you agree that there is little chance of passage of fair employment, anti-poll tax, anti-lynching, anti-segregation, minimum wage and Taft-Hartley revision legislation unless the rules are changed to permit a majority of the Senate to impose cloture?" was my next query.

"Absolutely!" Biffle replied almost before my question was finished. "The people just won't tolerate letting a small number of Senators tie up the Senate and refuse to let the majority have a chance to vote. What's more, we can't stand the bad publicity abroad right now of a filibuster against civil rights."

I told Mr. Biffle of the perplexing dilemma we were in as proponents of civil rights legislation with respect to the eagerness of organized labor to amend the Taft-Hartley act before contracts expiring in May and June had to be negotiated. Even with perfunctory hearings the labor law is not scheduled to reach the Senate until the middle of February.

Senator Taft had told me the evening before that there would be at least sixty amendments to be considered which would consume at least a month. Jim Carey of the CIO had stated flatly that as much as labor is interested in civil rights, its primary concern, understandably enough, was in more enlightened and liberal labor laws. Jim doubted that labor would stay in line if a filibuster against a civil rights bill held up amendment of the Taft-Hartley law.

"Can a filibuster be won within a month when the Senate will have little business before it and before other important bills are ready?" I asked.

He nodded vigorous affirmation, his thin lips tightening in a fashion which augured discomfort for filibusterers.

Maybe the "97th Senator"was kidding me. Even his not inconsiderable power may not be sufficient to check the Richard Russells and Olin Johnstons and other Dixiecrats, or Dixiecrat-sympathizers who will fight desperately to keep themselves in power by choking off legislation to democratize the South.

But as of this moment I would lay a modest sum on the quiet little Arkansan who holds the potent weapons of patronage, committee assignments and administration approval.

Global Atomic Power Race Now Boasts Five Contestants

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK — (AP) — An international atomic power race is getting underway in the fifth year of the atomic age.

The contestants are the United States, Britain, Russia, France and Canada. Progress in each is obscures by secrecy. But there is no cooperation. It is each nation for itself alone.

The United States appears to lead. But there is one 'if.'

If none of the others has discovered a short-cut to make atomic power more cheaply and easily. Such a discovery is not impossible.

Each of the other nations has one of those incentives which are the mother of invention, and which sometimes change history.

For three nations, this incentive is lack of the huge sums the United States is said to be lavishing, Exact American figures are secret. But David Lilienthal, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy commission, says the money is greater than private American capital can afford.

The three with the honest-poverty incentive are Britain, France and Canada. Russia has a different incentive. She lacks coal or any other industrial power fuel at low cost. For her, atomic power could pay the biggest and quickest dividends.

American power progress is slow. In the fourth year after the war, America finished her first post-war pile. It has enough heat for power experiments. At first it was announced such experiments would be made. Now unofficial reports are—probably no power at Brookhaven, N.Y.

The first atomic steam-electric power plant is to be built near Saratoga Springs, N.Y., under the General Electric company plan which was announced recently. Construction might take years, but no figures have been issued.

Nucleonics, a new atomic energy scientific publication, has said editorially that private American industry, if permitted a free hand, would have atomic power already years ahead of its present stage. The McMahon act prohibits industry from making its own private plants.

Atomic energy commissioners have not said how far along power may be. Their most significant move in 1948 was to predict it should be possible to build power plants that 'breed' more atomic fuel than they consume.

PAGE FOUR MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1949

Drive carefully tonight and tomorrow—remember that all week-ends are dangerous for reckless drivers.

According to the taker of a backward look, food prices hit their peak last July 13—so any later resemblance to a peak is entirely coincidental.

Economic Report Reasserts Aims

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S economic report to Congress, as transmitted yesterday, did little more than elaborate on a few points covered in his State of the Union message, personally delivered last Wednesday.

Yesterday's report made it even more definite that corporations would be depended upon very largely to supply the additional four billion dollars the President deems it necessary to secure by federal taxation, although individuals in upper and middle income brackets may be called upon for even a greater part of their draw.

The housing shortage is recognized in the President's request that rent controls be extended another two years, and enforcement strengthened. As to housing, the proposal stands to provide one million low-rent units within seven years, either by private enterprise or government funding of construction projects.

The subject of wage controls continues to be dealt with in mild manner, with no more than a suggestion that "the government should have authority to limit wage adjustments which would force a break in a price ceiling—except where the adjustments are essential to remedy hardship."

The "price ceiling" mentioned is assumed to refer to a recommendation for enactment of selective price control in order to "combat sharp rises in the prices of essential products." The President optimistically forecasts that "such authority should encourage voluntary adjustments and should be supplemented with government power to withhold price rises while public inquiry is being made."

Other subjects touched upon in the State of the Union message appear in similar form in the economic report—aid to education; health and welfare; expansion of social security; restraint on installment buying; price support for farm products; expansion of public power, and the like.

All in all, a comprehensive program has been presented for the consideration of Congress—so comprehensive, in fact, that it may be wondered what will come of it.

Marshall Served Long and Well

WHILE it was not entirely a surprise, the resignation of George C. Marshall could only be accepted with regret by the President and the entire American people. Illness has forced the retirement of the World War II chief of staff who, with the coming of peace, accepted the heavy responsibilities of attempting to solidify the achievements of victories by land, sea, and air.

Marshall has had to continue to fight in a cold war as he did in a shooting war. It has been a heavy strain. But there can never be any doubt of his immense service to his nation throughout a long period of recent history.

President Truman has announced that the naming of Dean Acheson, attorney and undersecretary of state with Cordell Hull, will mean no change in the foreign policy of the nation. This seems logical since the United States is already deeply committed along lines of world-wide assistance to check Russian expansion. Further implementation of that policy now becomes Acheson's task.

Finance Committee's Dilemma

A MAGICIAN would come in handy right now in pulling around a half million dollars out of the air as an aid to Mansfield city council's finance committee, as it tackles the job of spreading fixed income over much larger requirements for operation of various departments.

In the absence of a magician, and also lacking the services of Aladdin's lamp, it would appear that costs must be cut or more money provided by taxation. If there is any other solution to the problem we feel sure the finance committee would appreciate hearing about it.

The Kansas City Star finds no excuse for the 5-year-old California "minister" who performed a marriage ceremony, but points out that "it surely couldn't have been an idea he picked up from a comic book."

Clyde Moore, Ohio State Journal paragrapher, has an idea that it would greatly simplify the making of tax returns if the government would merely tax what is left at the end of the year.

Though some people complain about their jobs, if you asked them what one job they'd least like to have, most would name some other fellow's work.

The Galt (Ont.) Reporter quips: "Horse sense is probably a fine thing but it doesn't seem to have done very much for the horses."

Still There's An Uncomfortable Feeling.

Raymond Moley's Analysis

Tradition Expected To Exert Influence

NO revolutionary legislation is likely, despite the President's gestures toward carrying out his campaign promises. This Congress, like its immediate predecessors, is likely to be expensive but not radical.

It will be expensive because it is so easy to spend money both within and without presidential budget requests. It will be mildly conservative because its new leaders, its procedure and its habits closely follow tradition.

In changing its rules, the House simply registered once more its conviction that democracy may be all right for political oratory but that it cannot work in a legislative body.

In this, the House is wise, indeed. The House is so big and its membership so miscellaneous in ability and training that it must have discipline. It always has had a boss. The question has been the identity of the holder of the whip.

Nearly 39 years ago, on March 18, 1910, a group of insurgent Republicans headed by George Norris and Victor Murdock "overthrew" Czar Cannon. Speaker Joe Cannon, although personally very popular, belonged to the conservative tradition. He appointed all committees, including the powerful committee on rules on which he served as chairman.

The resolution jammed through by the "insurgents" took from the Speaker the appointment of the committee on rules and ousted him from membership in that body. The next House took from the Speaker all power to appoint committees and entrusted that to the House itself.

In the course of time, particularly in the past 10 years, the committee on rules has assumed great power. It gathered to itself much of the authority over legislation which the Speaker had in the days of Cannon.

* * *

Speaker Regains Power.

THE new House now has curbed the committee on rules. It has provided that if the committee refuses to give a bill the right of way, the chairman in charge of the bill can move, after 21 days, that the measure go to the House.

Actually, this gives great power to Speaker Rayburn, who can invoke the traditional practice of Reed and Cannon in recognizing only those to whom he wishes to give the floor.

Thus, after many years, power has shifted back to the Speaker. But Rayburn is no Cannon. The friendly and conciliatory Texan does not seek his ends by arbitrary means but by private persuasion and compromise. His potential power will make him a powerful mediator.

In the new Senate, the "revolt" of the Republican liberals was nipped in the bud. Taft and Wherry retain their ascendency. There were grave weaknesses in the revolt.

Taft is no reactionary. His voting record and his sponsorship of legislation are as liberal as those of most his opponents.

His record is, in fact, more constructive than most because he never has failed to make clear that he has a real program for which he is ready to fight.

It was a fundamental weakness of the liberal group which opposed him that they presented no program of their own. That, however, would have been exceedingly difficult, since it would be hard to get agreement between such senators as Morse and Saltonstall or Aiken and Ives.

If in this Congress there is to be a Republican record which might in 1950 reverse the defeat of 1948, Taft will loom large in its creation. For his intelligence, courage and industry will stand out once more as constructive forces in a body in which those qualities are not too common.

'Call To Duty' Sounded

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON —The election hand-writing of last November is all over the walls of the new 81st Congress.

The Democratic leadership is demonstrating that it learned something from that victory, has sensed its meaning and has been infused with the fighting spirit of President Truman which carried the party to its surprising triumph.

The Republican leadership seems to have learned little, if anything, though there is healthy rebellion in the ranks.

The contrast was interesting and showed in dramatic scenes at both ends of the Capital.

There was, for example, the speech of Speaker Sam Rayburn when he took over management of the House. Usually a few happy phrases will serve that ceremonial occasion. But Rayburn departed from tradition and pictured himself as a man with a mission and his party as a party with a mission.

He is "charged with a great responsibility." A "call of duty" has come from the country to the President and to Congress. On international issues he expected the middle of the aisle to be erased.

"But on domestic issues," he said, "we will divide. The Democratic party has been called to solve them. We will fail in our duty and miss our mark if we do not live up to the expectations of the American people."

That was a pledge and a challenge.

Then, with decision and dispatch, he directed the House as it carried out, in workmanlike fashion, the orders of President Truman to remove the veto which the house rules committee so long has enjoyed and by which it often has blocked in the past just such measures as are included in President Truman's program for this Congress.

In a few minutes a reform was accomplished that has been talked about for many years. There was discipline in its execution. Democrats of themselves supplied the majority, 225 of them supporting the leadership. A majority of the whole House is 218. That was encouraging for the leadership.

* * *

Not Fully United.

THERE are still divisions in the party. They were revealed in 31 southern Democratic desertions on this issue.

The differences will come out sharply later on controversial matters. But the buoyancy and spirit of the Democratic party in Congress assembled is quite a contrast to that atmosphere of dejection that hung over another body of Democrats from all over the country, the Philadelphia National convention, only six months ago.

They got a cue then in the final belligerent address there of President Truman one hot July night. So few caught it then. They have caught it now. The people had to throw it literally in their faces.

The people reacted to President Truman's indictment of the 80th Congress. From him they learned how a few men in that body, particularly in the House, could thwart their will. So it was appropriate that Democrats should do something about that sort of road-block at the outset of the new Congress, as they did.

Dave Boone Says:

IT LOOKS to me like Harry Truman's airplane would have to have two left wings if he is to fly the course he set in that State of the Union message Wednesday. And to do all the things he wants, he may need Dunninger in his cabinet.

"The state of the union is good," declared the President in his opening sentence. And then he gave the longest list of defects, faults and troubles ever listed in any one message. It reminded folks of that old jingle about the dog that was all battered up but was "a darned good dog for the shape it's in."

It was always said of Harry that he plowed a straight furrow but if he didn't zigzag all over the landscape, I'm no judge of furrows.

Congress May Adopt Football Strategy

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON— Now that President Truman has laid down his program to Congress, how is it going to be carried through?

Suppose you wanted to make a touchdown fast and the line was tough and you could get around the ends.

You wouldn't buck the line— till you had to.

That's how the Democratic leaders in Congress probably will try to shove over President Truman's program, or as much of it as they can.

That's a guess, of course, because Mr. Truman's lieutenants haven't outlined their full strategy. But put yourself in their place.

Wouldn't you try to ram through the easy parts of the program first and wait till late in the session with the ones that mean a big fight?

Just keep this in mind in trying to figure out what may happen in the new Congress.

The Democrats have a majority over the Republicans in both House and Senate. So Mr. Truman has that much in his favor.

If all the Democrats stuck together in every case, they could pass any bill they wanted to over the Republicans' heads. But Democrats and Republicans almost never vote solidly as Democrats or Republicans.

On any given bill some members of both parties almost always switch over to the other side.

Mr. Truman's aides have to think of that and pick their steps as they go along.

But then there's the problem of the southern Democrats, and it's a real problem for Mr. Truman. This is the score in Congress:

In the House—Democrats, 262 (between 100 and 110 southerners); and Republicans, 171.

In the Senate—Democrats, 54 (24 are southern Democrats); and Republicans, 42.

Any time the southern Democrats get sore and join forces with the Republicans, Mr. Truman's Democrats in both houses are swamped, unless enough Republicans desert their side and vote with the Truman men.

And the southern Democrats are plenty sore about Mr. Truman's program for more civil rights for southern Negroes.

Now those southern Democrats, many of them, may be perfectly willing to vote for a lot of Mr. Truman's program.

And, in return for their favorable voting, they may hope to work out a compromise of some kind on the civil rights idea.

But suppose Mr. Truman's strategists tried to put through the civil rights program early in this session.

The southerners would fight it, of course. But it might make them so sore that Mr. Truman would lose their help for the rest of the term on the rest of his program.

So the civil rights part of the Truman program probably will come up late in the session, after a lot of other things are out of the way.

But Mr. Truman wants Congress to set up a health insurance program for the nation.

Plenty of Republicans are opposed to that. So, undoubtedly, are a lot of Democrats although, at this early date, they haven't blasted it.

Trying to get through health insurance is sure to mean a tough fight all around. So that, too, is apt to be held back till late in the session.

Repealing the Taft-Hartley labor act, which the Republicans passed in 1947 and which Mr. Truman promised to wipe out, is likely to be one of the first big moves of the new Congress.

It was a campaign issue and labor expects quick action on it.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Studies Truman's Newer Deal

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE LAST Congress was called the "do-nothing" legislature by Harry S. Truman. The new one, if the President has his way, might very well become the "do-most." Few administrations have spread out a more comprehensive blueprint in one speech than that laid before the 81st Democrat-controlled Congress by Mr. Truman.

In his State of the Union address, the President ranged far, sometimes farther than the New Deal of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Among other things, Mr. Truman asked:

$4,000,000,000 in new taxes, repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, aid to farmers, civil rights laws, universal training, expanded social security, a new minimum wage of at least 75 cents as compared to the current 40 cents, federal programs in the fields of education and pre-paid medical insurance, and 1,000,000 new public housing units in the next seven years.

Asks Cooperation.

With many of the new senators and representatives regarded as New Dealish, the President noted: "In the months ahead I know that I shall be able to cooperate with this Congress."

Mr. Truman recommended that the new taxes be levied principally against corporations. He also called for higher estate and gift taxes and increases in personal income taxes in the "middle and upper brackets."

With this was coupled a request for anti-inflationary measures, including standby power to impose wage and price controls, strengthened rent control extension, continued control of consumer credit and more power "to control bank credit."

New Wagner Act.

In place of the Taft-Hartley law, Mr. Truman proposed re-enactment of the old Wagner act with, however, prohibitions against "jurisdictional strikes and unjustifiable secondary boycotts."

As to civil rights, Mr. Truman issued a new call for all the proposals he advocated last year—proposals which cost him four southern states in the election. They include an anti-lynching law, repeal of the poll tax, and prohibitions against employment discrimination because of race, creed or color.

The President is to deliver his annual budget message to Congress on Monday.

At Home

Overseas Cemeteries.

American war dead from more than 400 overseas cemeteries will be shifted to 14 permanent military cemeteries in Europe, Africa and the Philippines.

Relatives were given their choice of having their dead returned home or left overseas in military cemeteries in the area of their sacrifice.

World War II cost 358,967 American lives overseas. Of these 257,890 are identified casualties.

About 64 per cent of the families asked that the remains be brought home for burial. About 114,000 have thus far been returned with another 40,000 scheduled for shipment.

The Army estimates that just over 100,000 American heroes will be interred in these 14 permanent military cemeteries.

They will be located in England, Holland, Germany, Luxembourg, Belgium, France, Italy, Tunisia and in the Philippines.

Cost of Electing a President.

The Democratic national committee reported on how much it costs to renew a lease on the White House and regain control of Congress.

In a year end financial statement filed with Congress, the committee showed it wound up the victorious year of 1948 with less money than it had at the start. It spent a total of $2,127,296.

At the start of the year, the committee had $315,367 in the bank. At the end it had $180,914.

The committee said it collected $1,866,746 during the year in contributions, gathered another $84,596 from other sources.

Moonshine Is Back.

Moonshiners are giving the government a run for its liquor tax money.

Wartime priorities on sugar, grain and copper forced the bootlegger to close up shop but now with these supplies again available illicit stills are staging a comeback.

The Internal Revenue Bureau reports seizure of 3,010 stills during July-November, 1948, or 122 more each month than in the same five months of 1947.

The confiscated stills had a capacity of 16,369 gallons of whisky daily, reflecting a 48 per cent increase over the previous year on a production capacity basis.

Most of the arrests are concentrated, as usual, in southern states.

Celestial Smog.

Astronomers have discovered the greatest dust cloud in the universe—one so vast it would take 1,000 years for a beam of light to pass through it.

Anyone can see it with the naked eye in midsummer by looking almost straight overhead around midnight, at the constellation Northern Cross. In this constellation, right in the glow of the Milky Way, the cloud is a dark, fish-shaped patch. The fish is surrounded by a platter-shaped rim of light, coming from stars too distant to be seen.

There are many fog banks in the universe, but this is the first to have its depth measured.

Abroad

British Tight Rope.

Britain walked a diplomatic tight rope in 1948 and expects to walk another in 1949.

Before last year, the British Foreign Office says, the Labor government bent over backwards to avoid the impression that it was siding with other western nations against Russia. But the last conference of Big Four foreign ministers, which broke up in London in December, 1947, was such a fiasco that the government had to face the fact it had better work as closely as possible with its real friends.

It came out into the open with what long had remained an official secret—that Britain and the United States had agreed to standardize arms to fixed American sizes and patterns.

Troublesome Ruhr.

On Christmas eve in London, weary western Allied diplomats laid down their pens. They had worked since November 11 on how to harness Germany's Ruhr so that products of the vast coal and steel center could be used for peace but not for war.

In the waning days of 1948 the fruit of their labor was published—an agreement for international control of the Ruhr. This agreement, still to be ratified by the six governments represented at the conference, is a compromise.

The compromise does not altogether satisfy the French, who wanted the Ruhr separated from Germany. That feeling is understandable in a people invaded three times since 1870 by war machines manufactured and supplied from the Ruhr.

Peace Move In China.

The Chinese peace offensive picked up speed.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek officially opened the door in his New Year's Day message when he said he was willing to discuss peace with the communists if it could be arranged on fair terms.

"I have the strength to fight," said Chiang, "therefore I dare talk about peace."

Nationalist planes dropped leaflets over communist positions urging Red troops to stop fighting and permit peace negotiations.

Farmer's Diary

Grandfather's Auction

By CALVIN A. BYERS

I REMEMBER my grandfather Byers' auction sale with the kind of pleasure that is recorded in an old print by Currier and Ives. Grandfather was old—too old to work his farm—but he remained in the old home, and the rest of us farmed the land for him.

It was a cold January day. The ground was frozen and snow was deep on the summits of the surrounding ridges. The sale was advertised, and had all the elements of a community festival. Dinner was served to all who came, without cost.

Naturally, a small boy remembered the details of the feast. My uncles rolled out barrels from the cellar and set them in line around the old log house.

Planks were laid on these and the food was spread there—roast beef and ham between slabs of home-made bread and butter, applebutter, pickles, hot coffee, several kinds of kuchen.

People came from across the mountains, from the village and the nearest city. Many came on foot, others drove spring wagons, sleds and surries. Everybody talked Dutch, even the auctioneer. The picket fence about the yard enclosed a motley crowd. Grandfather, tall, lean, big-boned, went lumbering about the supervision of everything.

Grandmother, who wore a plaid shawl over her white hair, was plump and busy, with food and family matters. Children, of whom I was one, dodged in and out wherever things were busiest, in order not to miss anything.

They sold the horse-power grinder my father had helped to build. It was used for cider-making and for threshing, too. It had five long tongues to which teams were hitched and a center platform where a driver stood urging on the horses around the never-ending circle. A cylinder revolved and shattered out the grain which was winnowed by a windmill afterward. (The process was better than flailing.)

The grinder made quite a clatter since the wheels were wooden and echoes of its motion reverberated through the valley.

The household goods sold were all home made. The chairs had bottoms woven of seasoned hickory splits. Homemade trays from the dry house sold; the spinning wheel and the loom. Grandfather's blacksmith tools. A number of new, unfinished wagon wheels. Two huge copper kettles.

The highest price was brought by the tall "grandfather's clock," which two men carried down from the landing and set before the crowd. The heavy weights slapped against its sides as they moved it, but it still ticked slowly. Perhaps it still ticks, somewhere, for it was excellently kept.

They've Found the Culprit!

In between sneezes and snuffles, victims of the common cold may find a little comfort in knowing that the virus of the common cold has been cornered. Up to now they couldn't look forward to relief. "Science had been frustrated. It couldn't even put a finger on the culprit behind their congested misery.

But the U. S. public health service did not give up the hunt. It has found a way to spot at least one cold virus (there are others) by mixing it with something in a test tube—just like the movies, where "science" always gets its man. Of course this won't keep anyone from catching cold. It won't make the cold get better any quicker. But it will enable "science" to make studies and investigations, not unlike a police department keeping track of public enemies, waiting for the time to spring the trap. May the time, snuff, snuff, come soon!—Canton Repository.

Irony of War; British Arm Arabs Openly, Finance Jews By Imports

HERE IS ONE of the strangest current ironies of history: The British Gov't has been shelling out millions to arm and support Arab armies. . . . The best customer for the citrus fruits (which Israel exports) is England and the rest of the British Empire.

The revenue Israel has been receiving as a result of these exports plays a vital role in supporting their own army. . . . In short, business as usual. . . . War is a racket.

Henry Wallace (remember) has always denied he is pro-Communist or has ever done anything to aid Communism here... Recently Wallace was the principal speaker at a meeting sponsored by the National Council of American-Soviet Frienship...This outfit has been listed by the Justice Dep't as Communist and subversive, if you'll pardon the redundancy.

What should shock you is this: What's the good of listing these outfits (as subversive) if they are allowed to continue their subversive activities? That's like a policeman who knows that a lawbreaker is guilty of a crime—and allows him to continue stealing!

Cong. Rankin, who slanders innocent people while enjoying the immunity of the House floor (and once brought on, a heart attack that killed Cong. Klein), now says "it is disgraceful" the way they slandered a dead man (Laurence Duggan).

Yeah. Only time it's permissible to slander a dead man is when he happens to be a dead President, eh, Mr. Rankin?

Some writers would have you believe Whittaker Chambers was ignored by Gov't officials ten years ago when he tried to give evidence of alleged Communist activities within the Gov't...The facts: The only real evidence Chambers had was the microfilms—and he kept them hidden for a decade...Only a few months ago he testified before the un-American Activities Committee that he lacked documentary evidence to back his charges.

Chambers is an admitted ex-Communist, and accused liar and a former Russian spy!

A Herald Tribune foreign correspondent recently attempted to whitewash the military leaders who commuted Ilse Koch's sentence. He claimed "there was not enough evidence to justify life imprisonment"...We hope you read that Senate committee's bitter denunciation of the clemency granted the harlot.

This committee proved there was more than enough evidence against her...Now the Herald Tribune editorialist concedes the sentence commutation was "an error in judgment" and adds that "the four-year term seems palpably insufficient for Koch."

The same Herald Tribune foreign correspondent (Ed Hartrich) attempted to pooh-pooh the evidence against Ilse Koch, which this column first published...The U. S. Senate committee's report completely corroborated this column's documented evidence... Mr. Hartrich will kindly turn in his press card.

Would the Good Samaritan Have Stopped a Second Time or Not?

NEW YORK—(AP)—The fat man finished his meal in the small restaurant, then stood stolidly in line at the cashier's counter to pay his check.

He forked a rumpled $5 from his pocket and tossed it to the woman. She was a skinny, tired woman of middle age—the wife of the restaurant owner.

"Dollar ten," she said in a flat monotone. She counted some bills, and the fat man absently crumpled them into his paw.

"Good night," he said.

"Night," she answered, leaving off the adjective. It is thus that harried people unconsciously criticize life.

Outside, the fat man counted the money. With kindling excitement he realized that the woman had given him change for a $20 bill instead of a $5.

"Well, well," he said, pleased. He put his hand in his pocket and walked along slowly, fingering the bills and jingling the coins.

"Let's see," he thought, "I can buy three shirts, some socks, some . . ." He came to a bar and went in. He started to order his usual beer—the beer that explained his belly—and then changed his mind and called for a highball.

He bought a fifteen-cent cigar and strolled over and put a nickel in the juke box. Highball in hand, cigar in mouth, he stood and listened to an old tune about somebody saying he couldn't give somebody anything else but love, baby.

And right in the middle of the fat man's pleasure a face came into his mind—the face of a mousey woman cashier with glaring dyed hair, a weary face too scant of flesh to fill the wrinkles under her eyes.

Three minutes later the door of the restaurant opened and in came the fat man. The tables were almost deserted, but there was still a line at the counter.

The fat man stomped over to the cashier. Half-angrily, half-defensively, he began:

"You—."

But the cashier said:

"You'll have to go to the end of the line."

"I like that," said the fat man. But he went. When his turn came, he began again:

"I was here a little while ago, and you made a mistake in the change."

The cashier stiffened immediately.

"I'm sorry, you're supposed to count the change before leaving the counter," she said.

Her husband, who had been stacking cigarets in the case, straightened up.

"Once you leave the counter—it's your funeral."

The fat man indignantly slapped the bills and coins on the glass counter.

"What I'm trying to tell you is you gave me change for a $20 instead of a $5."

The husband's face hardened as he turned to his wife.

"How the devil did you do that?"

"Honey," she said, a fear came into her eyes.

"How could you mistake a $20 for a $5," said the husband. "It's bad enough to be dumb. Do you have to be blind, too."

"Honey," she pleaded.

Neither of them paid any attention to the fat man. He hesitated a moment, then went back out the door.

"I wonder what the Good Samaritan would have done if he came to a second guy in a ditch," he brooded. "Would he have helped him, too?"

But he really knew the answer.

Police Nab Importer In Dope Raid

Find Important Leads to Ring

NEW YORK—(INS)—A wealthy importer who lives in a Duplex Park avenue apartment today was described by police as "the biggest smuggler of cocaine in the western hemisphere" following his arrest for illegal possession of narcotics.

He is Ralph E. Jiminez, 46. Police described the tall, distinguished looking importer as an associate of Lucky Luciano and the late Dutch Schultz.

Jiminez was trapped as he opened a subway station locker in which police found 40 ounces of pure cocaine valued at $80,000 in the illegal retail market.

Arrested with Jiminez was Roger F. Blasque, 38, an elevator and switchboard operator.

Both men were charged with illegal possession of narcotics and locked up at police headquarters.

Jiminez was seized less than 24 hours after he returned to New York by plane from Lima, Peru, and only a week after U. S. customs agents arrested him at Miami after he stepped off another plane from Lima.

The customs agents said that at the time of the Miami arrest Dec. 31 he was carrying 40 ounces of cocaine. Jiminez is free in $5,000 bail on the Miami charge.

A search of the Park avenue duplex which police said was Jiminez' home disclosed a woman whose name was withheld by police.

The search also revealed "valuable information and leads to sources of more information" concerning dope smuggling, according to narcotics squad detectives.

The arrests were made by detectives of the narcotics squad, acting on a tip.

According to the detectives, Jiminez and Blasque are lifelong friends, who worked in the policy racket together in the days when it was ruled by Schultz.

EASTERN STANDARD ATOMIC TIME—World's first "atomic clock," said to be accurate within one second per year, is unveiled in Washington. Constant back-and-forth vibration of atoms in the ammonia molecule governs clock's operation, promising to free man from age-old methods of fixing time by daily earth rotation. The new clock is expected to "greatly improve" astronomical observations, navigation, communications systems, surveying, military cartography, radio filters, telephone relays, radar. Driving mechanism is furnished by vibrations of a tiny quartz crystal.—(International)

Tax Collections Upped 25 Million

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio cities and counties collected about $25,000,000 more from property taxes in 1948 than in 1947, the state commissioner of taxation estimated today.

Still more revenue could drop into local pockets in 1949, if business and industry continue their brisk pace of expansion.

Commissioner C. Emory Glander prepared this cheerful news for the legislature expecting to face still more demands for state money by Ohio cities.

The estimate was based on trends in a survey he is conducting for the legislature.

"This does much to alleviate the doleful prospects for cities at the beginning of the year," said Glander in an interview.

"It should reduce the pressure on the state for subsidies to local subdivisions, too."

Bulk of the new property taxes came through industrial expansion—from levies on new machinery, equipment and inventories.

But, in addition, Glander said the department of taxation through a property tax enforcement program accounted for more than $3,000,000 of the 1948 increase.

Still to be tapped, Glander said, are sizable sums in property taxes still not ferreted out. Tapping this deep lode of tax revenue was the purpose of the property tax enforcement program authorized by the last legislature.

The legislature appropriated $150,000 for the purpose. The two-year program cost about $140,000—and collected about 21½ times that much in new taxes.

Many Ohio cities began 1948 with a dreary prospect for huge deficits. They didn't take into account the additional revenues from industrial expansion.

Take the cases of Cleveland and Cincinnati. Ohio's two largest cities predicted large deficits for year's end. What happened? The deficits failed to materialize; industrial expansion provided the cushion on which the cities propped their aching financial backs.

Commissioner Glander long has been a middle-of-the-road expert on the subject of taxes. He doesn't want unbridled state subsidies, which amount to municipal doles, nor does he feel the state can now leave local subdivisions to their own salvation.

Cyclist Badly Hurt

Vehicle Crashes Into Taxi In City

Andrew McBride, 28, of 160 Michigan avenue, who was seriously injured Friday afternoon when the motorcycle he was operating crashed into the rear of a taxi at Second and Main streets, was reported in poor condition by General hospital officials today.

Albert Zeigler, 26, of 136 Columbia avenue, who was riding on the motorcycle with McBride, was in fair condition today, hospital attaches said.

McBride was thrown 27 feet from the point of impact, and Zeigler 30 feet, police said. McBride suffered a concussion and a fractured collarbone and Zeigler a skull fracture and broken collarbone.

William Bauer, driver for the Yellow Stripe Cab company, told police he was making a left turn onto Second street from South Main street when the motorcycle struck the left rear fender of his taxi.

The motorcycle was badly damaged and the rear bumper and fender of the taxi were damaged, police said.

Lay-offs, Holiday Blamed

180 Find Work With OSES Aid

The number of placements through the State Employment office in Mansfield reached the lowest point of the past year last month, according to a report from W. C. Handley, manager of the office in Mansfield.

A total of 180 placements were made, a 40 per cent drop from the 300 placements in November. The best month for placements during 1948 was July when 420 persons found jobs through the OSES office. The total number of placements during the year was 4,228, an increase of 304 over the 3,924 in 1947.

The holiday season contributed to the low December figure, Handley declared. Few openings occur in the holiday season and few people make an attempt to get a position, preferring to wait until the beginning of the year, he pointed out.

"There were a number of seasonal layoffs and furloughs called in Mansfield plants just before the holidays, but many are now being called back or expecting to be," Handley said.

LAG EXPECTED

It is normal for the activity of the employment service to fall back in December, he added. And the activity picks up again in January, he continued.

Applications for work dropped considerably in December, with only 304 applications made compared with 458 in November. The year's total was 5,637. In 1947 the figure was 5,319.

The OSES referred 342 persons to prospective employers last month, compared with 811 in November. During 1948 the total number of referrals was 10,886, more than 10 per cent over the 9,524 referrals the previous year.

Employes sought to fill 215 jobs through the office in December. The November figure was 338. For the year 8,053 openings were reported to the office, a drop from the 9,879 in 1947.

During the past week activity at the OSES has been high, Handley reported. Part of the increased activity is due to claims for unemployment compensation claims made for lay-off time last month, he said.

Error Gives Dems Eleven Extra Votes

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Alabamans may be surprised, but the Cotton state's 11 electoral votes were reported by the official Congressional Record to have been cast for President Truman and Vice President-elect Barkley.

The error was made by the Record when a joint session of the Senate and House tallied the electoral college votes yesterday, making election of the Truman-Barkley ticket official.

Alabama was one of the four southern states carried by States' Rights presidential candidate J. Strom Thurmond. The table carried by the Record correctly reported Alabama's 11 Thurmond votes, but the error was in the text.

Age No Handicap In Congress

Life Starts at 65 For Those Who Guide America

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Correspondent.

WASHINGTON — Are you 65? Do you feel that life is behind you? Do your friends call you "old man"?

Tell them they are wrong. Tell them that life really begins at three-score years and five and not at 40.

If they do not belives you, then let them look at the 81st Congress, for here is a Congress which will be run by men to whom 65 is generally a young age.

As a matter of fact, most of the leaders of the new Congress are considerably older than 65.

The oldest is Robert L. Doughton, the new chairman of the House ways and means committee which handles tax legislation. He is 85. Except for being a little hard of hearing, he is apparently hale and hearty.

His friends hesitate to call him "old." There is a story which has been going the rounds in the Capitol that a horse Doughton was riding injured his leg and was unable to continue. The North Carolina congressman, so the story goes, got off the horse, threw him over his shoulder, and continued on his way.

Doughton's counterpart in the Senate, Senator Walter F George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate finance committee, which handles House-approved tax bills, is 70

The new chairman of the House rules committee, perhaps the most powerful in Congress, is chubby-faced Adolph J. Sabath, of Illinois. He is 82

SERVES 42 YEARS

First elected to Congress from Chicago in 1906, Sabath has served continuously for almost 42 years. He is one of the most active members of the House.

Sabath's office is located on the third floor of the Capitol. Directly across from him, on the other side of the House chamber, is the office of the new chairman of the House foreign affairs committee, another young man of 78. He is Sol Bloom of New York. He will tell you at the drop of a hat his recipe for remaining hale and hearty.

The bespectacled New York congressman regards his counterpart in the Senate, Tom Connally of Texas, as a youngster, for the chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee is only 71

So is the new president of the Senate, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who at 71 is beginning a new life as vice president of the United States.

Then there is Rep. Brent Spence of Kentucky. At 75 he again takes over the chairmanship of the important House banking amd currency committee. He will lead the fight in the House to enact legislation combating inflation.

Spence's eyesight is failing, but when he takes the floor in support of an administration bill, his voice rings vigorous and strong. He is rarely absent from his post because of illness

One of the most colorful figures in Congress is Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee At 79 he again takes over the exacting task of running the Senate appropriations committee. Despite his age, he didn't hesitate to break with "Boss" Ed Crump of Tennessee and support President Truman for election.

The new chairman of the Senate judiciary committee is Pat McCarran of Nevada, who is 72. For many years he has helped lead the "silver bloc" in the upper chamber.

Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, who piloted bills carrying hundreds of billions of dollars in wartime funds, will again take over the exacting task of running the House appropriations committee. He is 69.

65 IS YOUNG

A comparatively young man is Senator Elbert D Thomas of Utah, new chairman of the Senate labor committee. At 65 he will help share the burden of carrying out the Democratic pledge to repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law and write new labor legislation. The new chairman of the House labor committee, Rep. John Lesinski of Michigan, is only 63.

The speaker of the new House of Representatives is also a young man in comparison to most of the committee chairmen. Rep. Sam T. Rayburn of Texas is 66.

Then, of course, there is a former member of the Senate who will be giving the new Congress a lot of work to do. Harry Truman is 64. There are few who would call the president an "old man" after what he did in the Nov. 2 election.

There are those who say that the 81st Congress is the oldest in history, that it will be led by "old men." But the so-called "old men" who will run the new Congress can't feel that way about it.

They will tell you, if you ask them, that a man doesn't really become valuable until he's hitting 65 or better. They will tell you that this "life begins at 40" is just the bunk.

Some of them remember Congressman Isaac R. Sherwood of Ohio. He didn't leave the House of Representatives until he was 89½. Even then, Sherwood wanted to remain in Congress, but was defeated for re-election. He died in Toledo, O., Oct. 15, 1925, a few months after leaving the House. He apparently holds the record for longevity.

Of course, there is not general agreement among members of Congress over the correct age for retirement. An old sea dog, former Senator Thomas C. Hart of Connecticut, retired in 1946 after refusing to seek re-election. Hart was then 69. He said he was too old to serve any longer.

It can definitely be stated that most of his colleagues did not agree with him.

British Ask Selves Who Won the War

Germans Faring Much Better

By ROBERT MUSEL

FRANKFURT, — (UP) — Things are so tough for the family that another cut in the standard of living will drive it right down to the British level.

That doesn't apply to Berlin, where the Soviet blockade and the Anglo-American airlift have produced a special situation.

But it's a fact that in the western zones of Germany in this third and perhaps most critical winter of peace, the specter of a decline to the austerity existence of victorious Britain is haunting the head of many of a German household.

Already Germans are eyeing fearfully the first signs of such an economic retreat. The new western-backed currency is beginning to deteriorate. Cigarets, the infallible index, are rising in price on the blackmarket. They sell now for about $3 a pack, approximately four times the price when the new deutschemark was introduced.

But though his money is buying less, the vanquished German is better off in some respects than his victorious British counterpart.

Standing beside a few tattered Wehrmacht veterans, I stuck my nose against the plate glass window of a sumptuous new restaurant on the Bahnofplatz—formerly Hindenburgplatz— and watched well-clad diners eating in a leather and chromium setting that would not have shamed Broadway.

They were eating from a menu which would have surprised and bewildered most Britons, restricted as they are to three-course meals costing no more than $1.

Not all Germans, of course, can afford to eat at luxury restaurants, where wine is plentiful and food is near prewar standards. To bring German middle-class family life into perspective, here is a comparison of the "guaranteed" weekly rations per person in Britain and Germany:

Meat—British about 12 ounces; German four ounces.

Bread — British unrationed; German two and one-fifth ounces.

Fats—British eight ounces; German seven ounces.

Eggs — British one weekly; German unrationed.

Sugar—British 10 ounces. German 13 ounces.

Milk—British two and one-half pints; German one and one-half pints.

On the face of it, that would give the British the better of it. But where the German has the edge is in the well-oiled and smoothly operating black market where anything is available at any time at a price.

Soil Board Elects 3

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The State Soil Conservation committee today approved the petitions of Seneca, Darke and Preble counties to establish conservation districts and elected its 1949 officers.

Officers chosen were L L Rummell, dean of Ohio State university's college of agriculture, who was reelected committee chairman; Glen Smith of Fayette county as vice chairman, and W. B. Wood of Ohio State university as secretary.

Rummell reported that 78 Ohio counties have organized or are in the process of forming soil conservation districts through which farm landowners can cooperate in reclaiming, building or maintaining soil fertility.

The chairman said organization of a district enables the county to request and receive from the federal soil conservation service technical help on all soil and conservation problems.

Organized Reserve Corps Will Move Office to Downtown Site

The offices of the Organized Reserve corps is preparing to move to a new location at 31 North Main street, Capt. R. M. Flynn announced today.

The present office is at Hangar 7, Municipal airport The move is made necessary by the lack of room at the airport for the expanding reserve program. Flynn said A downtown location will make the offices more convenient for reservists, he added.

The new quarters are being redecorated and remodeled. They are expected to be ready for occupancy by next week.

A main office a store room for equipment and clothing belonging to reserve units, a classroom capable of seating 80 men, and a strong room for arms storage will be provided at the downtown headquarters.

Flynn predicted additional space will be needed if the reserve program continues to expand at the rate it has in the past year He said a continued expansion may necessiate the erection of an armory similar to the Naval armory on Ashland road

A survey of possible locations for such a building was completed last week, he revealed.

Recent directives from the Army have broadened regulations under which former service men and women may apply for commissions in the Organized Reserve corps Flynn said.

For former warrant officers and enlisted personnel who served in the first three grades, the age limit for commissions has been raised to 32 years The applicant must be a high school graduate, or pass the army general classication test at high school level. The physical standards set by the reserve corps must be met.

Today's Sport Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—(UP)—The year 1948 was a busy one in sports, with grim struggles for titles and headlines—and money—but at times there were lighter moments which produced daffy developments you may have overlooked.

For instance, there was the Santa Susana stakes, won by Mrs. Rabbit with Candy Kane in the money. Could you think of a better Christmas-Easter parlay?

And then the Phillies tugged at the smile muscles of your kisser when they announced that henceforth and forevermore they would "stop paying big money" for established stars and concentrate on development of young players. That is, undoubtedly a reaffirmation of their 1901 policy.

★

THEN THERE was the sensational announcement that the University of Hawaii would open redoubtable Army's 1949 football schedule. Yes, it's the same U. of H. which engaged in a thrilling 73 to 12 defeat at the hands of Nevada.

The Detroit police moved into the act by setting six world pistol shooting records. Which reminds us, boys, that there is a law in Detroit against ogling the gals.

They held the annual Valdosta-to-Waycross bicycle race in Georgia. The winner, a Western Union boy, was reportedly disqualified as a professional because he took a tip while delivering a telegram.

In Greece, troops were called out to protect the Olympic flame carriers from the guerrillas. You can't have it much hotter in the old town tonight.

★

THE CLOSEST approach to a scandal involved the Olympic athletes. There were reports that the girls visited the men's camp frequently at night. The upshot was that 250 women athletes were moved farther away. Can you imagine?

There was, also, the damage suit brought against the Boston Red Sox by Mrs. Mary Corrivean. The lady demanded $1,000, claiming injuries had been sustained from a ball hit by Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians.

The gentlemen who own the Red Sox should sue her for even daring to bring up his name.

Do you remember what Boudreau did to those Red Sox with his bat in that American league playoff?

Colorful Jim Quits Cardinals

CHICAGO—(AP)—A St. Louis advertising firm has pulled the biggest coup of the season on the high-biding pro football market by luring Jim Conzelman out of his Chicago Cardinal coaching job and into the business world.

It was done without much effort, since the irrepressible 49-year-old coach in his letter of resignation said he decided to get out of football and settle down to a more normal family life.

ACCOUNT EXEC.

As an account executive for the D'Arcy advertising company his effervescent personality, which has made him one of sports most colorful figures, will come in handy. For two years he has worked for the firm on off seasons.

Jimmy's Cardinal contract signed in 1948 had one more year to go, reportedly for a salary of about $25,000.

★

After the football magician came back to the Cards in the season of 1946, his team won 26 and lost nine games in league competition. The Cardinals tied Green Bay for third place in 1946, won the league championship in 1947, and headed the western division in 1948.

SECOND RESIGNATION

It was Conzelman's second resignation from the team. After coaching the Cardinals from 1940 to 1942, he left to join the St. Louis Browns baseball club as assistant to the president from 1943 to 1945.

Conzelman was revealed to have turned down an offer of $50,000 to coach another NFL club, presumably the Washington Redskins. He had completed his sixth season in the league last fall.

French Boxer No Match for Steve Belloise

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK—(AP)—Robert Villemain is a 100 per cent game Frenchman but he can't punch hard enough to rate as a middleweight title threat.

That was the ringside consensus at Madison Square Garden last night after he lost a decision to Steve Belloise in a bloody 10-rounder. It was the first defeat for the stocky Frenchman in 35 pro starts.

Villemain caught the fancy of the crowd of 11,863 who paid $35,968 to see his American deput. Blood streamed from wide cuts around both eyes but he refused to sag. Instead he carried the attack to his older opponent in the late rounds.

Harry Markson, director of the 20th Century Sporting club, was impressed by the courage of the former European welter champ. He wants to bring him back later in the winter. There is some talk of a match with Rocky Castellani of Luzerne, Pa., the "Rookie of 1948."

Bucyrus Redmen Romp Over Galion Quint, 60 to 42

GALION — The slick-scoring Bucyrus Redmen ran rampant at Junior high here last night to defeat the Galion high Tigers 60 to 42 in the first Northern Ohio league game of the season for the local cagers.

Bill Kibler Bucyrus guard was high point man of the game, scoring a total of 18 points via seven field goals and four fouls. Two teammates Walter Light and Widman forward, followed with 16 and 12 points respectively. Galion was led by Wisler who threw in five field [illegible] on fouls for a total of 14 points.

The Galion [illegible] won its game in the preliminary tilt 26 to 24.

Four Top Big 9 Quintets Tangle

CHICAGO (AP)—Four of the Big Nine's top basketball title contenders face each other tonight in the first full-round of the season's championship play.

In the only conference game thus far, Illinois climbed to the top with a 62-50 triumph over Wisconsin. Tonight Illinois invades Indiana and Michigan opens defense of the crown at Minnesota in the two outstanding games.

Ohio State, another powerful contender, is host to Northwestern while Purdue goes to Iowa.

Dutch In Lead

LOS ANGELES (INS)—Dutch Harrison paced the field today into the second round of the $15,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament with a two-under-par 69.

Ram Second Team Plays Lot of Ball

By CHARLEY STINE

Madison high school used its first team only a little more than half the time last night as it ran over a weak Wapakoneta Blume quintet, 51-36.

It was th fourth victory in six games for Madison and, as usual, it was the Rams deadly accuracy at the foul line which made the biggest difference. Madison converted on 19 of 31 free throws with Jim Brightbill not having a miss in nine tries.

The game was sloppy through most of the way as the visitors resorted to rough tactics and Madison coach Blaine Dowler gave his second-stringers a chauce to play.

NEVER AHEAD

Wapakoneta never led and was tied only at 7-7 before Madison started to break away. Ed Chelski scored the tie-breaking bucket from far out just before the first quarter ended. The Rams had things pretty much their own way from there on out. With the score standing 21-12, Dowler unleashed his whole second team.

Wapak look to be fired up as it scored four points immediately after the opening of the third quarter. The Ram varsity took charge, however, and rang up nine straight points to pull out in front 31-20. The reserves went back in for their turn but when Wapak came within five points in the fourth quarter, the varsity came on to salt it away.

RESERVES WIN ONE

The reserve game saw much closer competition than the varsity as Madison won its first of the season by a 31-29 overtime score.

Madison led for three quarters but shortly after the opening of the fourth period, Simpson took charge and appeared to have things on ice. The Bulldogs were freezing the ball when the Rams' Davies stole the ball and made the goal which sent the game into overtime, 25-25.

Simpson scored first in the extra period but Coach Ennis Walker's team fought its way back to a 29-29 tie and then Marty Keipp won the game with a rebound shot with 15 seconds remaining.

★

Madison is scheduled to invade New London next Tuesday and will be host to Loudonville Friday night.

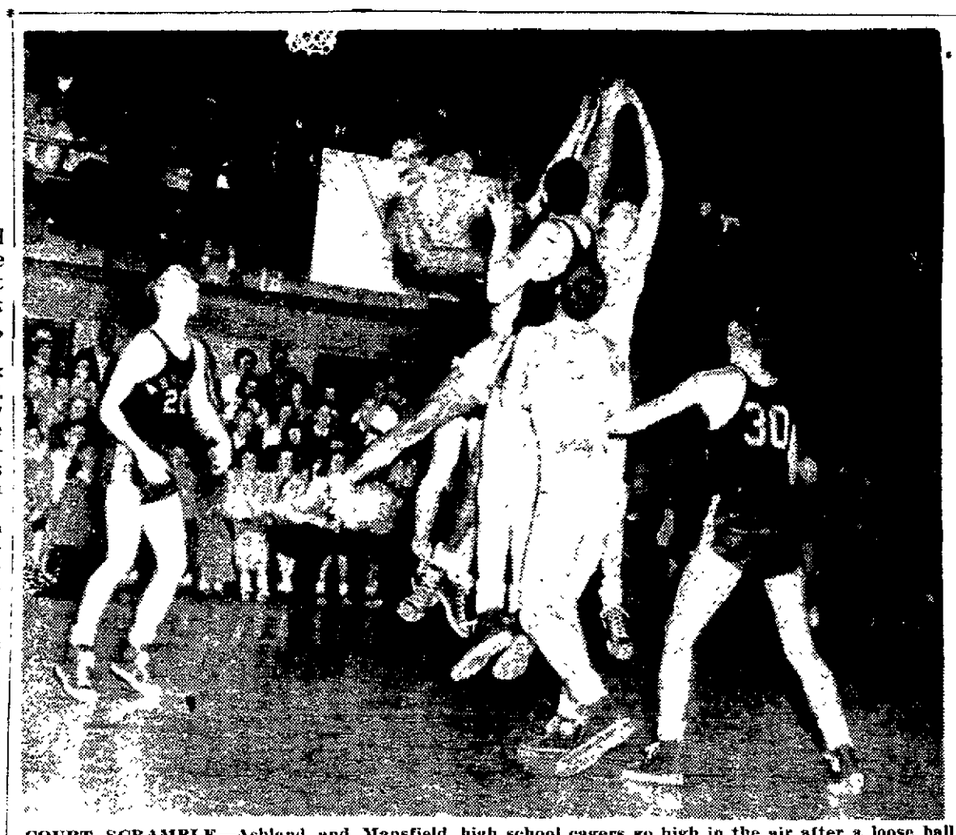
Buckeye Five Opens Conference Campaign

COLUMBUS (INS)—Coach Tippy Dye's Buckeye five opens its western conference basketball schedule tonight at Columbus against Northwestern.

Ohio State's won-five-lost-one stacks up well enough against the Wildcats' two-wins-out-of-seven to tout them favorites in the first "counter" of the season.



COURT SCRAMBLE—Ashland and Mansfield high school cagers go high in the air after a loose ball in last night's game at Senior high. Willie Fowler and Jim Anderson of the Tygers vie with an unidentified Ashland cager for possession. Shelby Takes Third NOL Tilt From Willard, 36-32

SHELBY—The Shelby high school Whippets today are perched on top of the Northern Ohio league basketball standings with three straight victories. Last night, the Whippets rallied strongly in the last stages of the fourth quarter to knock off Willard, 36 to 32.

Willard controlled the game until Coach Charles Williams' club switched to a pressing defense in the second half. The Railroaders led by quarters 9 to 6, 16 to 12 and 25 to 21. With four minutes remaining, Stan Cronenwett, Shelby center, hit a one-hander to tie the count and then dropped in a free throw.

ONIE IS HOT

Hank Novac, Willard's 6-7 center, connected on a pair of fouls to send his team back in the van. Then Hal Onie hit one from the sidelines to again put the Whippets in the van. Novac dropped in a pivot shot but Onie came through with two more baskets and a free throw to win for Shelby.

Dick Utz and Cronenwett, both 6-3 cagers, teamed up to do a good defensive job on the giant Novac. They limited the big boy to four field goals but he managed six free tosses to take scoring honors with 14.

Utz and Cronenwett each had 11.

Willard took the reserve contest, 24 to 16.

Fourteen Schools Warned to Stop Sport Recruiting

By RUSS NEWLAND

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— Fourteen member schools of the National Collegiate Athletic association have been warned to clean up their high-pressure recruiting of athletes by March 1.

They are "clearly not complying" with the NCAA's year-old "sanity code" regulating such matters, compliance committee chairman, Clarence P. Houston, reported to the NCAA executive board. He did not name the offenders.

In another report at last night's meeting, Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood informed NCAA representatives that college football went through the 1948 season without a single fatality. Dr. Eastwood, professor of education at Los Angeles State college, said it was the fourth time since 1941 that American colleges finished a season with no deaths directly or indirectly resulting from the game.

There were 18 "direct" fatalities during the year, he said, six in "sandlot" games, three in pro-semipro football, and nine in high school games. Eight other deaths were indirectly due to football.

Bellville 5 Wins County Tilt, 30-25

BELLVILLE — Bellville's Blue Jays could not find their shooting eye here last night but played good enough defensive ball to make up for it as they trimmed invading Lucas, 30-25.

The victory was the fifth in seven Richland county league games for Coach Harry Regula's Jays and left them tied with Lexington for second place. Lucas had been tied for the runner-up spot but fell to fourth place.

Bellville hit on only 17 per cent of its shots but Lucas also failed to convert many lay-ups.

Led by Jack Cunningham's 18 points, the Bellville reserves won, 33-22.

New Combo Swamps Favorites, 56-40

By FRED THARP, News-Journal Sports Editor

The newest of many Senior high court combinations tried this season by Coach Vern Hoffman paid rich dividends last night in the Tyger lair.

Featuring two newcomers to the starting lineup, the renovated Bengal basketball machine annihilated a favored Ashland team, 56 to 40, with a powerful last half surge. It was the 39th victory for the Tygers in the long series which has reached 74 skirmishes.

Soph Ken McCally and Letterman Ed Demyan made their first appearances as members of the Senior high starting cast, and their presence seemed to help the Bengals snap out of their recent lethargy. McCally was second among the Tyger scorers with 13 markers and Demyan contributed four.

Ashland, seeking its seventh win in eight games, sneaked into a 23-to-21 lead at the half but did little basket denting after that.

NORB TIES COUNT

A foul by Bud Jones gave Ashland a three-point margin at the outset of the second half but Big Norb Shibinski cashed in on a pivot shot and foul to knot the count. Phil Lersch, the real bright spot of the visiting outfit, hit a long one-hander to send his mates back ahead.

Speedy Willie Fowler scored from the gratis line to cut the lead to 26-25. Then McCally stole a pass and passed to Jim Anderson under the board for an easy lay-up. Not a half minute later Pinkie Ferguson dribbled the distance of the floor to cage a "bunny" shot.

With the score favoring the Bengals, 29 to 26, it still looked like a typical Mansfield-Ashland drag 'em out affair. But the resemblance soon changed. Fowler hit on a fast break and Anderson sunk a one-hander to give Mansfield a seven-point lead.

NARROWS GAP

Ashland narrowed the gap to 33-29 at the third intermission but never threatened after that. Fowler, McCally and Anderson hit right after the start of the quarter and the Bengals were off to the races. They led 49-31 with three minutes to go.

McCally and Anderson were the big guns in the fourth stanza with eight points apiece. The veteran Lersch actually kept the game from being a walk-away as Mansfield outscored the Taylor Tots, 23 to 11, in the finale. Lersch got eight of his 19 markers in that heat, hitting three straight baskets.

The A's at one time looked like they were going to run away with the contest. They piled up a 7-to-1 lead before Ferguson dumped in a bunny shot. Lersch sunk two fouls to make it 9 to 3, but Senior high closed the quarter with nine straight points to lead, 12 to 9.

TYGERS LEAD BY 10

Seven more points at the outset of the second heat gave Mansfield a 19-to-9 lead. Ashland closed the quarter with 10 points in a row to take that halftime margin.

The Tygers were once again lax from the foul line, making only 10 of 30. However, the shooting from the court was much better as they connected on 23 of 63. Senior high missed six free tosses in a row in the second quarter.

Anderson led the Tygers with 16 points and Shibinski had 12. Demyan fouled out with five seconds remaining while Ashland lost Lew Russell in the third quarter and Ray Bates in the fourth.

Hoffman's team has won five of eight and 15 in a row in the Tyger lair.

A'S WIN PRELIM

A "hot" Ashland Junior Varsity quintet swept the Mansfield sophs from the unbeaten ranks, 35 to 28, in the preliminary contest. The Tyger cubs had won six straight victories.

Except for a brief spell in the second quarter the junior A's led all the way. Score by quarters favored the winners 8 to 5, 19 to 14 and 25 to 24. The sophs led in the second heat, 9 to 8.

Art Hartig, Mansfield, and Lee Hurd, Ashland, each had 10 tallies.

Three other pitchers are on the Detroit team. They are: Dizzy Trout and Art Houtteman of Detroit and Billy Pierce of the Chicago White Sox. Cass Michaels, White Sox infielder, is the fifth man.

Rolling for Zahn's will be Dale Cleckner, Nick Weber, Hal LeMunyon, Lou Zahn, Farrell Hipp and Fred Willis.

Perrysville Puts Savannah 5 Off Undefeated List

ASHLAND — Perrysville knocked Savannah from the ranks of the undefeated last night before a packed house in the Ashland college gymnasium. Savannah had won its nine previous starts—all by at least 10 points.

It was a race horse game from the start with the score knotted at 15 all at the end of the first period. The Admirals fell off the pace and were trailing by 12 points going into the final quarter.

It was then that the Perrysville ace, Snuffy Smith, helped put a rousing finish to the game by leading his mates in a 23 point fourth quarter, with Herb Brown dropping in the winning basket as the buzzer sounded.

Smith scored 13 points in that last period giving him a total of 20 for the game and 223 for the season.

The reserve game was won by Savannah, 25-17.

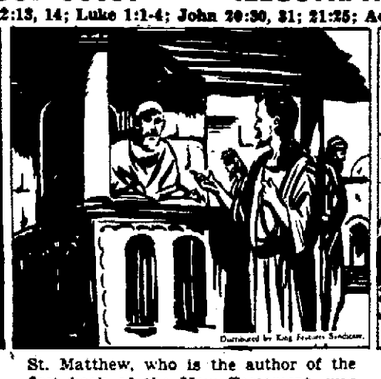
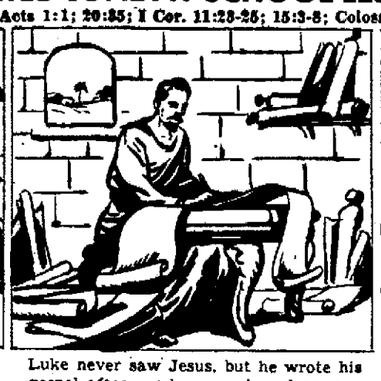
Apostles Tell Us About Jesus — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 2:13, 14; Luke 1:1-4; John 20:30, 31; 21:25; Acts 1:1; 20:35; I Cor. 11:23-25; 15:3-8; Colossians 4:14; I John 1:1-4.

Mark, author of the second book of the New Testament, was a companion of Paul and Barnabas on a missionary journey. He tells of Jesus going to the seaside, and the multitude coming to Him.



St. Matthew, who is the author of the first book of the New Testament, was with Jesus for nearly all the years of His short ministry. Jesus having called Matthew as he sat at his custom house taking tolls.



Luke never saw Jesus, but he wrote his gospel after much research and conversations with people who had been close to the Lord while He was on earth, and had seen and talked with Him after His resurrection.

St. John the Apostle finished his book about Jesus by saying that "if all the things which Jesus did could be written down, the world could not contain the books."
